Upheld Kicks Off New IVP Bible Study Line

Upheld: Meeting Our Trustworthy God Through Isaiah is the first title in a new Bible study line from InterVarsity Press (IVP).

In this study Bible teacher Kori de Leon leads groups and individuals through a six-week Bible study experience on Isaiah 40–48, pointing them to God’s faithfulness and mercy.

De Leon says, “I have found that Isaiah 40–48 is a wonderful place for growing in the habit of calling out to God and walking confidently with him. In this passage, God enters into the hardship of his people, revealing his remarkable character. He supplies a catalog of comforts that covers a wide variety of struggles we face each day in this fallen world. In other words, he doesn’t just say, ‘Do not fear; I will help you.’ He provides a gallery of the specific ways he will help us. He teaches us how to put off our old habits of fear and seeking help from our substitutes for God. And we learn how to put on new patterns of calling out to God and waiting with humble expectation for the help he provides.”

This Bible study guide also comes with access to videos and discussion questions. Each group session starts with a short ten- to fifteen-minute video followed by forty-five minutes of discussion.

“This is a new approach to Bible study: the work is do-able and the content is both invitational and beautiful,” says executive editor Elissa Schauer. “There are no expected answers, no multiple choice or fill in the blank, and no guilt. IVP Connect is accessible. Whether you’re newer to Christianity or you’ve spent a lifetime memorizing Bible verses, we invite you to engage in this new collection of Bible studies from IVP.”

Kori de Leon (MA, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary) is the founder and director of Adoring Christ Ministries, a nonprofit ministry committed to helping women know Jesus Christ and become like him in all areas of life. She is an author and speaker, the host of the Equipping Conference, and a cohost of the Adoring Christ Podcast.
